DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 3/15/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., inputting a symbol relating to a field label) are not recited in the rejected claims. Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Specifically, examiner respectfully disagrees. Applicant fails to provide any details in the claim language to what defines a symbol. Blum teaches that in addition to a listing of available field box, a pop-up list box 78 that contains an indication of any existing values for the stored properties corresponding to the available field labels (col. 5, lines 14-27). In other words, the pop up box represents a respective item defined by the user. Therefore, Blum discloses inputting a symbol relating to a field label and compares the input symbol and the field labels.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 6-9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Blum et al (US 5,805,164).

Regarding claims 1, 6 and 8, Blum teaches accessing information represented by an image on a graphical display of a portable electronic device (see abstract) , the method comprising: displaying at least part of the image on a display of the device, the image including indicators representing respective items defined by a user of the device (col. 6, lines 20-24); assigning respective labels to the indicators included in the image (col. 6, line 25); displaying the labels on the image with the respective indicators; receiving an input symbol from a user of the device (col. 6, lines 26-29); comparing the input symbol with the labels displayed on the image; and if the input symbol matches a label displayed on the image, retrieving information relating to the item represented by the indicator to which the label is assigned, and displaying the retrieved event information on the display device of the portable electronic device (col. 6 ,lines 30-49).

Regarding claims 2, 7 and 9, Blum teaches the image is a calendar image and the indicators relate to events (col. 3, line 19).

Regarding claims 4 and 11, Blum teaches the symbol is input by the user via a keypad of the device (element 41).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 5, 10 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blum et al (US 5,805,164).

Regarding claims 3 and 10, Blum fails to specifically disclose the symbol is input via a voice signal. However, official notice is taken that inputting a symbol via a voice signal is well known in the art. Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include symbol-inputting means via a voice signal with Blum's invention in order to allow the user to have a hands free capabilities.

Regarding claims 5 and 12, Blum fails to specifically disclose the portable electronic device is a mobile telephone. However, official notice is taken, that it is notoriously it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include a mobile phone as Blum's portable electronic device in order to allow the user to perform phone calls.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
